Some specific information that applies to the entire household is only listed under the first person enumerated (usually the head of household). These variables include: whether the dwelling was owned or rented (variable: ownrp01), if the dwelling was mortgaged or owned outright (owntp01), if the dwelling was a farm or a house (frmhsp01), and the farm schedule (frmschp01). They, along with their descriptions, appear in italicized type in the above rubric. Please note that none of these variables were included in the 1880 census, but were included in each of the other 3 decades.

Similarly, besides this general household information, each census record contains the same information for each individual household member. For example, the variable occp03 indicates the occupation recorded for the third person enumerated in a household. For this reason, the 1900, 1910 and 1920 codebooks only contain the variables for the first household member enumerated. Please see the 1880 section of the codebook for a more complete overview of each variable for each of the possible 15 household members.
